TEENAGER SURVIVES IN JUNGLE - ON CHEWING GUM!

"It was always my dream to go to Oz!" says British teenager Louise Saunders. Louise saved and spent months planning her trip to Australia with her friend Jo. But she didn't plan to spend three nights on a mountain!

5 While in Australia, Louise decided to go for a walk in the rainforest on Mount Tyson, in Queensland. But then she didn't come back. Louise was lost and alone. She called her friend Jo, but her mobile phone cut out. Then she broke her glasses. A team of three helicopters and seventy people looked for Louise, but they didn't see or hear anything. It became dark. The Australian rainforest is a cold, dark and scary place to stay at night. And it is home to some of the most poisonous snakes and plants in the world. "I slept for ten minutes at a time because it was cold and dangerous." "It's a horrible place to be" says Police chief Kim McComb.

10 Louise was now very hungry and very thirsty. She drank water from leaves of plants and a stream, and chewed the gum she had in her pocket. Then Louise's boyfriend, Steven Wong, found a rock. On the rock it said: 'Louise S. loves Steven W. forever'...' It gave us hope," said Steven "but we were running out of time."

15 On the third day, Louise was desperate. She thought, "If I don't get out today, I never will."

20 Louise found a stream and followed it. The stream led her out of the forest and to a rubbish dump. She was free. Louise says, "I will always thank chewing gum for my survival."
